PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of H.R. 2539, the Strengthening Local Transportation Security Capabilities Act of 2019, is to improve threat information sharing and law enforcement training for surface transportation security. This bill requires the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to prioritize the assignment of officers and intelligence analysts from the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) and the DHS Office of Intelligence and Analysis (I&A) to fusion centers in jurisdictions with high-risk surface transportation assets, in order to participate in the generation and dissemination of intelligence products, and to make security clearances available to appropriate stakeholders. This bill also enables the Secretary to develop a training program through the Federal Law Enforcement Training Centers (FLETC) to enhance the protection, preparedness, and response capabilities of law enforcement agencies for terrorism incidents at surface transportation assets.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

In the surface transportation sector, State and local law enforcement, as well as owners and operators of transportation assets, play a major role in securing the traveling public. A common complaint from stakeholders is that TSA and other Federal government partners do not provide sufficient information for them to adequately prepare for threats. Much of the needed information is classified, and many stakeholders lack the necessary security clearances to receive such information. Introduced by Nanette Barragán (D-CA), H.R. 2539 seeks to address these issues by increasing information sharing and making security clearances available to appropriate stakeholders.

Additionally, this bill seeks to assist surface transportation asset owners and operators to secure their systems by developing a training program for law enforcement with a focus on surface transportation threats. It is imperative that TSA collaborate with both public and private stakeholders in order to sufficiently overcome the unique challenges to securing surface transportation. This bill will ensure that TSA improves its relationships with transportation facility stakeholders, as well as state and local law enforcement.
